

Web Site Design for Land Developer and Commercial Real Estate

Communicating the credibility of a new commercial real estate developer required organizing content from the firm's capabilities piece to land survey graphics, to dynamic data sales specifications within the same web site. The site design for Landmark included a translation of the firm's capabilities piece using flash animation, a dynamic map of development locations and the ability for staff to add properties and specifications as needed.

